PREFACE.

In offering to the public the "Pictorial St. Louis, Past and Present," I have endeavored to meet a demand which has long existed for a work of this character which would reflect the interests of the city in its true light. I dedicate this work to the people of St. Louis to be handed down as an heirloom to future generations to show the growth of the metropolis of the great west. How well I have accomplished my task I leave you to determine. If it is not up to your expectations I beg your kind consideration. In the meantime I remain the public's faithful servant,

THE PUBLISHER.

Autumnal Festivities Association

This Association was organized on May 11, 1891, at a public meeting at the Exposition building, when it was resolved to raise a fund of one million dollars for festivity and other purposes during the years 1891, 1892 and 1893. Upwards of $600,000 was raised during 1891, and the work is now in active progress. The following is the organization:

Her Prosperity, Advantages <sup>AND</sup> Prospects.

The City embraces 61.37 square miles, or 39,276 $\frac{1}{4}$  acres. It is seventeen miles in length from north to south, and 6.62 miles from the river to its western limits, and has 19.15 miles of river frontage. It is the fifth city in size, the fourth in commerce, and has a population of 550,000. It is called the Mound City.

St. Louis is an independent city, being in no county, free from county legislation, and is governed under a scheme and charter which prohibits any floating indebtedness, and limits the rate of taxation, which is being gradually diminished. Tax rate is about 2.17. It is next to the healthiest city in the United States. The death rate averages about 21 per 1,000 per annum. It is the center of the Mississippi Valley, embracing 15,000 square miles of navigable rivers and about 25,000 miles of railroads, and leads the world in a dozen different lines of business and manufactures.

ELEVATION.

City Directrix, upon which elevations are based, is the top of a square flat stone set level with the curb on the west side of the wharf between Market and Walnut streets 0.00 (being the high water mark of the year 1826.)

It is situated as to natural advantages more favorably than any other city on the continent. The Missouri River flows into the Mississippi twenty-one miles above the city, and the junction of the Illinois River is only twenty-four miles above St. Louis. It is in the heart of the food producing regions of the continent, and is central to boundless wealth of minerals. Around it are vast supplies of coal, iron, granite, building stone, and earths adapted to the manufactures of glass. Productive lead mines are in the vicinity, and seek St. Louis as a point of manufacture and distribution.

The city has grown from small beginnings to gigantic proportions, and is to-day one of the greatest, wealthiest and most prosperous in the country, and every day of her existence proves herself more and more entitled to her proud position as the undisputed metropolis of the Mississippi Valley.

It is admirably situated for the prosecution of all departments of manufactures. In close proximity to a boundless store of all the useful metals, with vast supplies of coal almost at her gates, it is the cheapest coal market in the world, the cost to manufacturers being only $1.12 per ton. With a boundless profusion of food products at hand, for the sustenance of any possible increase of population, and with a market comprising the entire Mississippi Valley and the Great West, it is at once a most inviting city. Its manufacturing output for the last ten years shows a greater increase than any other city in America.

THE JOBBING TRADES.

St. Louis has the largest brewery, the largest tobacco factory, the largest drug house, handles more boots and shoes, has the largest hardware, woodenware, and the largest horse and mule market in the world, and is one of the greatest grain, flour and hay markets.

The importance of St. Louis as a central source of supply for the Mississippi Valley and the West is shown in an immense volume of transaction in all jobbing lines. St. Louis offers to the country merchant inducements for trade which are not excelled in any department in any city on the continent, and in many lines positively superior to any market in the land. It is not only a mart, it is a vast and busy workshop; each succeeding year records an increase in its mills, its forges and factories. The products of industry are not only bought, sold and handled in the city, they are made here. Every description of raw material for any line of manufactory which is to be found in North America can be produced in abundance within easy reach of St. Louis.

CHURCHES.

Fine church edifices abound. All shades of belief being sheltered in elegant structures, which add greatly to the architectural attractions of the city.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

St. Louis has a large number of fine public buildings. She erected more buildings in 1891 than any other city on the continent, and offers the safest and best investment to be found in any other large city in the world. Among the fine buildings are the Custom House and Post-Office, built at an expense of $6,000,000, and is one of the finest public buildings in the country. The Armory, Four Courts, Court House, Exposition, and under construction the new "City Hall," and one of the finest Railroad Depots in the world, to cost $1,000,000, are some of the fine structures.

ST. LOUIS PRESS.

The newspapers of St. Louis are fully up to the highest standard of Journalism. The press of the city has exercised a great influence in promoting its interest in every useful direction, and in aiding its progress towards the advanced position it holds among the great cities of the country. The leading dailies are the Globe-Democrat, the St. Louis Republic, Post-Dispatch, Star Sayings and Evening Chronicle, published in the English language. And the Anzeiger des Westens, the Westliche Post, Amerika and Tribune, German papers.

This Map is copied from the original map drawn by Colonel AUGUSTE CHOUTEAU, who was at the founding of the city, in 1764, and first surveyed the land. The map was drawn in conformity to an order from the Department, at Washington.

The names of the streets that were given at the laying out the town were

MAIN STREET,
CHURCH STREET,
BARN STREET,

NOW

MAIN STREET,
SECOND STREET,
THIRD STREET, RUNNING NORTH AND SOUTH.

TOWER STREET,
MARKET STREET,
MISSOURI STREET,
KICKAPOO STREET,

NOW ARE

WALNUT STREET,
MARKET STREET,
CHESNUT STREET,
PINE STREET, RUNNING EAST AND WEST.

The roads leading from the gates were what are now known as Carondelet Avenue (then the well known Vide Poche Road); the Manchester Road, the St. Charles Road, with its branches, and a road which led towards were Bremen now is. What looks like blocks of wood represents fields in cultivation, and the dots show timber. The mark of the compass is only given for the purpose of guiding the reader as to the cardinal points. It must be borne in mind that in some of the localities the direction of the streets has been slightly altered, which may account for some apparent discrepancies which may appear to subsist between the map and the main narrative as to the locality of the old fortifications.

This old map represents the town of St. Louis, nearly as it was laid out in 1764. Its breadth from the Mississippi, to the West, was to the line of Rue de Grange (now Third street), and its length was some few blocks shorter than the map represents. The wall of fortifications was completed in 1780. The letters have the following significations:

- A THE TOWER.
- B HALF MOONS.
- C BASTIONS.
- D GATES.
- E GOVERNMENT HOUSE.
- F THE CHURCH.
- G THE MARKET.
- H THE LITTLE RIVER.
- I PRIVATE TRACTS OF LAND.

MAP OF ST. LOUIS AS LAID OUT IN 1764.

SCHOOL SYSTEM.

St. Louis has an excellent school system (and next to Boston has the most perfect in the world), which offers the advantages of education to all the children brought up within her limits. The public schools are conducted upon the most approved principles of teaching, while the high school offers to the ambitious youth the opportunity for securing instruction in the higher branches of knowledge. In addition to the public schools are the Universities, Colleges, Academies and Parochial Schools. There are 106 public schools, 1,254 school teachers, with an enrollment of 59,700 public school children.

SOCIAL LIFE.

In social life there is every means provided for the pursuit of instruction or pleasure. There are many organizations devoted to social intercourse, to art, to music, to literature and to the various objects which indicate the intelligence and enlightenment of the people.

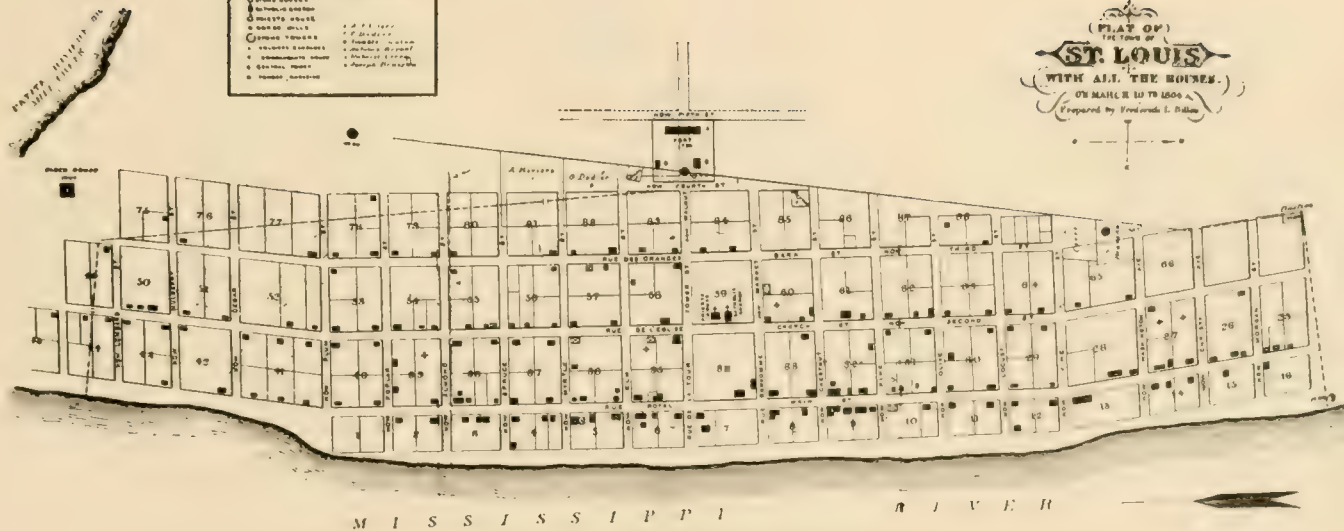

St. Louis is a live, vigorous and progressive modern city, endowed with many natural advantages, to which are added all the improvements which art or science has discovered to aid progress in business, in social life and in the pursuit of happiness. Her public museums, libraries and the numerous fine collections of paintings and works of art of her private citizens show the refinement of her people.

St. Louis has for many years been famous for its Annual Fair, for its Exposition, for its brilliant street illuminations, and for its magnificent Veiled Prophet parade. These attractions have drawn hundreds of thousands of people to visit it every fall, and its progressive citizens have decided for 1892-3 to eclipse every former effort in the annual festivities, and will illuminate the streets with electricity and miles of gas lit arches and pyramids.

THE TOWN OF
ST. LOUIS
(WITH ALL THE HOUSES.)
ON MARCH 10 TO 1600 A.
Prepared by Frederic L. Billow

[NOTE.—The light dotted line, beginning at the half cross at the Northwest corner of the Plot and stretching around the village in the shape as shown, represents the palisade put up immediately after the "Affair of May 26, 1781." They had all disappeared before long. The blocks of the 9-see how were not even "burned" until after the re-occupation of the City, in 1819.]

TEMPERATURE.

All the figures in the following table were obtained from Prof. F. E. Nipher, for many years Director of the Missouri Meteorological Bureau; they refer only to the city of St. Louis:

	1887.	1888.	1889.	1890.	1891
Maximum Temp.	98.8	96.2	95.5	100.	92.
Minimum Temp.	15.0	8.8	-2.2	-3.2	5.0
Average Daily Max. for July.	90.0	89.5	86.4	90.3	85.8
Average Daily Min. for July.	74.1	70.8	69.8	69.8	65.9
Average Daily Max. for Aug.	87.2	85.2	85.3	84.5	84.9
Average Daily Min. for Aug.	71.0	67.0	66.9	66.1	65.6

Mean temperatures based on the observations of fifty-three years:

July, 80°.4 ; August, 76°.5 ; January, 31°.1.

The difference between the average daily maximum and the average daily minimum shows the range between day and night. This difference is seen to be about eighteen degrees.

BOOTS AND SHOES

---

But a decade ago St. Louis' total output of boots and shoes was valued at the paltry $600,000 for a year. Ten fleeting years, and to-day that same output foots up $8,000,000.

Last year St. Louis received 244,000 cases of shoes from Boston; Chicago and New York each ranked away above her by over 60,000 cases, but a mighty change has taken place in the past twelve months and St. Louis has pushed past her two former superiors and fills first place with the handsome aggregate of 310,489 cases to her credit. Chicago comes second with 288,001 cases, and New York is content with 284,544 cases.

Following is a table showing the shipments from Boston to the principal distributing points throughout the country:

	Cases.
St. Louis.....	310,489
Chicago.....	288,001
New York.....	284,544
Baltimore.....	192,367
Philadelphia.....	117,553
Cincinnati.....	103,605
Nashville.....	76,041
Memphis.....	57,775
Cleveland.....	56,580
Louisville.....	54,398
New Orleans.....	47,886

At this rate of progress in five years from now St. Louis will lead the world in the number of shoes manufactured and in the aggregate distribution of same. She has plowed her way through to the front, laboring under the difficulties of inexperience and lack of reputation. Inch by inch she has gained supremacy over all competitors, with but a single exception. Her goods are worn throughout the greater part of our country and find their way into export channels.

BOULEVARDS.

The Street Commissioner of St. Louis is now at work on the plans and construction of a system of boulevards which will make this city a worthy rival of the older European cities in the beauty of its driveways and great thoroughfares. The system, as outlined by the Board of Public Improvements, will comprise boulevards embracing the following sections of the city:

Columbia avenue from west line of Clifton Heights to Kingshighway, and then continued along Magnolia avenue to Grand, 7,290 feet or 1.36 miles.

Delmar avenue from Grand to city limits, 22,324 feet or 4.23 miles.

Florissant avenue from Hebert street to city limits, 25,663 feet or 4.86 miles.

Forest Park Boulevard from Grand avenue to Kingshighway, 9,177 feet or 1.74 miles.

Grand avenue from Carondelet Park to Park avenue, 20,147 feet or 3.82 miles.

Grand avenue from Natural Bridge road to Broadway, 4,387 feet or 0.83 miles.

Hebert street from 12th street to Florissant avenue, 2,193 feet or 0.42 miles.

Kingshighway from Arsenal street to Florissant avenue, 30,716 feet or 5.82 miles.

Loughborough avenue from Broadway to Gravois, 11,360 feet or 2.15 miles.

Lindell avenue from Grand avenue to Kingshighway, 9,411 feet or 1.78 miles.

Macdonald avenue from Arsenal street to Forest Park, 8,619 feet or 1.63 miles.

McAusland road from Clayton road to Manchester road, 8,070 feet or 1.53 miles.

Park avenue from 11th street to Kingshighway, 19,096 feet or 3.62 miles.

Pine street from 12th street to Kingshighway, 20,346 feet or 3.85 miles.

Page avenue from Easton avenue to city limits, 20,818 feet or 3.94 miles.

Russell avenue from 12th street to Grand avenue, 8,215 feet or 1.56 miles.

St. Louis avenue from 12th street to city limits, 26,262 feet or 4.97 miles.

RAILROADS.

A definite idea of the importance of St. Louis as a railroad center may be inferred from the fact that of the 5,967 miles of railway constructed during 1890, 1,963 miles, nearly one-quarter of the whole amount, were built in States directly tributary to this city.

The erection at an early day of a magnificent Union Depot, and St. Louis railway facilities and conveniences will then be second to those of no city in the Union. The following is a correct list of the railroads centering here and their mileage :

NAME OF ROAD.	EXPRESS.	MILEAGE
Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, 218 N. B'way	Amer.	6,646
Missouri Pacific, 102 N. 4th	Pac.	5,094
Louisville & Nashville, 114 N. 4th	Ad'ns	2,064
